Cornell
Law School

The Master of Laws (LL.M.) degree at Cornell Law School is a one-year program designed for practicing attorneys and recent law school graduates who have earned a first degree in law outside the United States. Through the LL.M. program, students increase their understanding of American legal principles and can further develop a legal specialization. Our General LL.M. program allows you to tailor your own course of study based on your individual academic and career objectives while experiencing American law school culture. We typically enroll between 85 to 100 students from a pool of approximately 1,000 applicants. The Graduate Legal Studies Office can help you design a program of study from more than 120 courses and seminars, including first-year courses, advanced electives, or courses designed specifically for LL.M. students. Cornell Law LL.M. students are fully integrated into the academic and student life of the Law School. Our LL.M.s can enroll in courses with J.D. students and participate in virtually all student organizations. LL.M. students also have their own student organization that plans and schedules programs and events specifically designed for GLS students. Outside of the law school, you can enjoy the advantages of the large Cornell University campus located in Ithaca, part of the Finger Lakes Region of New York State.

Duke University School of Law
Durham, NC

law.duke.edu/international/international@law.duke.edu

Duke Law School's LL.M. program provides the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of the U.S. legal system and take advanced courses that fit your career goals. A wide range of courses enables you to design a curriculum that meets your specific interests. You might explore your topic of choice through a research project guided by a professor who is an expert in that field, or you might enroll in a course at Duke University's Fuqua School of Business, Sanford School of Public Policy, Nicholas School of the Environment, or another Duke program. By studying for most classes with J.D. students and enjoying close interaction with faculty, you will participate fully in the intellectual life of the Law School. Duke professors and students tackle complex, real-world problems in and out of the classroom. In courses such as Big Bank Regulation, Climate Change and the Law, or Sentencing and Punishment, students and faculty are deeply engaged. Duke is highly regarded for its leadership in many fields, but it is particularly known for its strength in business and finance law, environmental law, comparative and international law, and several areas of intellectual property law. Duke's practical skills courses also are among the country's best; some LL.M. students have participated in the Wrongful Convictions and other clinics, representing clients under close supervision by full-time faculty members.

Institution information:

MAURER SCHOOL OF LAW BLOOMINGTON

The Indiana University Maurer School of Law is home to one of the nation's oldest and most respected graduate legal studies programs, highly ranked and nationally regarded for its stellar faculty, students, alumni, and facilities. Our distinguished professors have expertise in disciplines that are crucial to the success of a global lawyer—intellectual property, global cybersecurity, business and commercial law, and human rights, to name a few—while our international, tax, and IP law programs have received national recognition. These areas of specialization, while not required, enable you to tailor your path of study to your individual needs if you so choose. The law school is located in Bloomington, a beautiful, safe, and friendly community with all the amenities of a larger city. You'll feel safe and secure here on our campus. Indiana University is home to a large and diverse international student population (nearly 6,000 people from more than 110 countries) that is welcomed by the community. Finally, with its ample scholarship availability and low tuition prices, Indiana Law is one of the best values in graduate legal education. We offer exceptional quality at affordable rates. And with the low cost of living in Bloomington, your budget will go further here than at many schools on the East or West Coast. Indiana Law is special. We have a deep and rich history of educating international students for more than 100 years, and we couldn't be happier that you are considering an LL.M., S.J.D., M.C.L., or Ph.D. with us. We hope you can make it to beautiful Bloomington to visit us in person.

Degrees Offered:

LL.M., J.D. open to international students, S.J.D. or other doctoral program, other Master's in Law, joint degrees, summer or short-term law programs for international students/attorneys. LL.M. to J.D. Transfer Option (LL.M./J.D.) Indiana Law has a process that enables our LL.M. students to apply to transfer to the J.D. program upon completion of their LL.M. degree. Students who are nominated to take part in the highly selective process are graded like J.D. students (rather than LL.M. students) in their second semester. Students who are then admitted to the Maurer J.D. degree program may count those J.D.-graded credits, as well as credits from a prior LL.B. degree in some cases (up to 29 credits in all), toward the J.D. degree to enter the J.D. program with advanced standing. Students can receive both an LL.M. and a J.D. degree in as little as three years.

Specializations and Popular Programs:

LL.M. Specializations:

Our areas of specialization capitalize on the existing strengths of the law school and offer you the opportunity to develop specific knowledge that can be applied in a variety of ways. Specialization is not required, but for those looking to further their knowledge in a particular area, we offer these specializations:

- American Law—General or Bar Exam Specialization
- Business and Commercial Law
- Financial Regulation and Capital Markets
- Information Privacy and Cybersecurity
- Intellectual Property Law
- International and Comparative Law; Globalization

Certificate Programs:

Indiana Law offers several non-degree graduate certificate programs designed to meet your specific legal education goals and interests in a short period of time. Certificates require 8 to 12 credit hours and one semester in residence.

- Certificate in Legal Studies (8 Credits)
- Cybersecurity Law and Policy (12 credits)
- Information Privacy Law and Policy (12 credits)
- Rule of Law and Constitutional Design (12 credits)

Application deadlines:

Fall

- LL.M., MCL & Certificate: April 1
 - S.J.D.: March 1
 - Ph.D.: See website
- ##### Spring
- LL.M., MCL & Certificate: November 1

Funding assistance / scholarships / partial fee waivers available for international students:

Indiana Law considers every applicant for one of our Graduate Legal Studies scholarships if they meet the application priority date. Scholarship decisions are based on academic and professional merit, financial need, as well as a number of other factors, including geographic diversity and relationship of the applicant to an Indiana Law partner school. Scholarships range from a few thousand dollars to 50% of tuition, and sometimes more. Even without a scholarship, our overall costs are often less than you would pay elsewhere. The priority date to be considered automatically for a scholarship is two months prior to the application deadline: February 1 and September 1.

At NYU, you will find powerhouse graduate programs in business and finance, international law, and taxation. You will learn from more than 100 influential academics in areas as diverse as constitutional law, criminal law, economic analysis of law, environmental law, legal philosophy, intellectual property, and competition policy. You will train for the profession through practice-based options, such as transactional classes, simulation courses, and clinical opportunities, and explore new perspectives on legal questions by attending classes at other divisions of the university. You will join classmates from around the world who will bring their insights and experience to the classroom while becoming your friends and personal global network. All this happens at NYU Law's campus in Greenwich Village in downtown Manhattan. It is a charming and vibrant place with a neighborhood feel and energetic culture. You will engage with New York's leading practitioners and policymakers both in and out of the classroom. Visits from prominent government officials; members of the judiciary; and leaders of the UN, international organizations, and NGOs will further enrich your experience.

NYU Law offers a number of highly competitive scholarships to full-time LL.M. students. Admission and scholarship decisions are made based on merit without regard to a student's financial need. Admitted students selected to receive one of these merit-based awards will be notified by e-mail along with further instructions on how to accept the award. All scholarship decisions are final and non-negotiable.

Hauser Global Scholars Program

The Hauser Global Scholarship is the most prestigious honor awarded to exceptional LL.M. students. This merit-based scholarship provides full tuition and reasonable living expenses, such as rent, the cost of textbooks and other study materials. (Hauser Global Scholar candidates must be graduates of a law school outside of the United States. Candidates must electronically attach to their online application an essay of 500 to 750 words that briefly describes a current legal dilemma, controversy, or issue facing a country, a region, or the world, and suggests a strategy to address the problem.)

Arthur T. Vanderbilt Scholarships

The Committee on Graduate Admissions will award a limited number of merit-based, full-tuition Arthur T. Vanderbilt Scholarships. Covering the cost of tuition for the full-time master's degree programs, the Vanderbilt Scholarship is awarded to a select group of extraordinarily talented LL.M. candidates who have demonstrated outstanding academic promise and/or achievement in their respective field(s) of interest.

Dean's Graduate Awards

The Committee offers merit-based awards in varying amounts to full-time master's students who have demonstrated significant academic promise and/or achievement in their respective fields.

Gerald L. Wallace Fund Scholarships

A select number of half-tuition scholarships based on merit are awarded to full-time candidates in the LL.M. in International Taxation program.

Northeastern University
School of Law

The LL.M. program at Northeastern University School of Law builds upon Northeastern's acknowledged leadership in experiential education and social justice. Northeastern's Cooperative Legal Education Program ("co-op") is unique. All LL.M. students in good academic standing spend an entire term (about eleven weeks) completing a full-time legal practice experience in settings as diverse as private law firms, corporations, courthouses, government agencies, community organizations, NGOs, and advocacy groups. Our General LL.M. allows students to tailor the program to meet their particular goals and interests and may be the best choice for students aiming to qualify for a U.S. bar examination. LL.M. students may also choose one of five concentrations: International Business, Health Policy and Law, Intellectual Property and Innovation, Human Rights, or Law and Economic Development. The Northeastern LL.M. program lasts twelve months (three academic terms and one co-op term). To be eligible for admission, an applicant must hold a first professional law degree (LL.B., J.D. or equivalent) and demonstrate English proficiency sufficient to allow the student to tackle advanced legal study in English. LL.M. students have the opportunity to complete a research paper under the supervision of a law faculty member. LL.M. students are admitted twice a year: in mid-May or mid-August.

ST. JOHN'S UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL OF LAW

Celebrating over 90 years of excellence in legal education, St. John's School of Law has produced lawyers who have distinguished themselves in practice, government, and the judiciary. Among our graduates are former New York governors Mario M. Cuomo and Hugh L. Carey, former Court of Appeals Judges Carmen Beauchamp Ciparick, Vito J. Titone and Theodore T. Jones, and the School's former Dean and former Court of Appeals Judge Joseph W. Bellacosa. In 2016, Governor Andrew M. Cuomo appointed Janet DiFiore as New York's Chief Judge, becoming the fifth St. John's Law Alumnus to serve on the high court. The law school plays a prominent role in the New York City legal community, imbuing all that it does with the University's Vincentian tradition.

The Law School currently boasts more than 15,000 living graduates and attracts students from over 200 colleges and universities throughout the world. The current student body of approximately 800 represents students from many backgrounds, all of whom have excelled in undergraduate institutions, and many of whom have been employed prior to starting their law studies. St. John's Law provides an exceptional education, grounded in the fundamentals of legal reasoning, writing, skills, and ethics. Students gain experience through the School's 19 centers and clinics, learn cutting-edge subjects that will help them succeed in today's global and technological profession, study abroad at St. John's campuses in Europe, and contribute to the production and dissemination of legal scholarship through journals and publications, all while being guided and mentored by a dedicated faculty, administration, and staff.

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

MORITZ COLLEGE OF LAW

The Ohio State University Moritz College of Law LL.M. program is designed for qualified lawyers from all over the globe interested in learning about the American legal system. Moritz is a small, tight-knit community: the LL.M. program is intentionally limited to 35-40 students. As a student at Ohio State, you'll get the best of both worlds: close interaction with classmates and faculty, individualized academic and professional development advising, and experiential learning opportunities at one of the nation's preeminent public law schools within of one of the country's most comprehensive and largest research universities with a wealth of resources to offer students. Our comprehensive LL.M. program is fully integrated with American students and offers specializations in key legal areas, including business law, intellectual property, international law, dispute resolution and more. Students have the opportunity to learn both in and outside of the classroom through Public Externships, D.C. Externships, moot court and a variety of clinics. In addition, you have the option to apply to transfer from the LL.M. to the J.D. program. Ohio State is located in the thriving city of Columbus, the capital of Ohio and 14th largest city in the United States. Students love Columbus because it too offers the best of both worlds: Fortune 500 companies, national hockey and soccer leagues, research institutes, and a thriving arts and culinary scene mean that Columbus offers all the advantages of a large metropolitan area, but it still maintains the friendliness, charm, and affordability for which the Midwest is known.

University of California, Berkeley School of Law Berkeley, CA

www.law.berkeley.edu/academics/llm/

llm@law.berkeley.edu

Berkeley Law is one of the premier law schools in the United States. A Berkeley Law degree means studying law at one of the top law schools in the United States, a public institution committed to academic excellence, social engagement, and intellectual and cultural diversity. It means coming to a place where we've been teaching LL.M. students for over 60 years; J.D. students, more than 100. It means learning from and engaging with internationally renowned faculty and distinguished scholars. It means creating longlasting relationships with legal professionals from around the globe. And it means living in the San Francisco Bay Area, one of the world's most culturally and intellectually stimulating regions on the planet. Berkeley Law has a diverse and constantly evolving curriculum, including our top-ranked Intellectual Property, International Law, Social Justice, and Environmental Law programs. Faculty members—some of the best legal minds in the business—embody the school's commitment to academic vigor, multidisciplinary research, and intellectual diversity. One of the hallmarks of the J.D. and LL.M. programs is the diversity of its student body, faculty, and curriculum. Such diversity is critical in a law school, which must train its graduates to analyze and interpret the law, reflect on competing viewpoints, present persuasive arguments in a variety of forums, and develop insightful and effective policies affecting broad swaths of society. But what sets Berkeley Law apart is its real-world focus. Experiential learning opportunities, like pro bono work, clinics, journals, and practica, give students the chance to gain hands-on legal and public policy experience. Our major think tanks—home to some of our most forward-looking research and outreach—serve as laboratories where law students can collaborate with some of the most innovative thinkers in the legal profession.

Specializations and Popular Programs:

Berkeley Law's LL.M. is a general degree program that allows for customization based on individual interests and goals. Our LL.M. curriculum, taught by Berkeley Law's world-class faculty, is designed to provide a strong basis in the fundamentals of U.S. law while allowing for specialization. Students have the option to focus their studies and earn certificates of specialization, pursue eligibility to register for a U.S. Bar Exam, or complete a thesis. Berkeley Law provides four paths to the LL.M. degree: the professional track, the hybrid option, the traditional track, and the thesis track. Students can choose the path that best fits their schedule. Berkeley Law LL.M. students can specialize in the following areas: Business Law, Law & Technology, Public Law & Regulation, Environmental Law, Energy and Environmental Law, Energy & Clean Technology Law, International Law, and Public Interest & Social Justice. Berkeley Law also offers a program for professional development, the Professional Legal Education (PLE) program, which gives eligible registrants the chance to take courses or pursue certificates at Berkeley Law on a non-degree basis.

Dean's Tuition Fellowship:

law.ucla.edu/llm-sjd/llm-program/financial-aid-information/
Our program can offer LL.M. students just one form of institutional financial assistance, which are the Dean's Tuition Fellowships. These limited, competitive fellowships are awarded based on merit and financial circumstances; these fellowships will only cover a portion of tuition fees (rather than full financial assistance) and cannot go towards living expenses. The maximum possible award for the fellowship would likely be no more than 50% of the cost of tuition, and oftentimes fall below the 50% threshold. These fellowships are granted based on a combination of both merit (academic and professional achievement) and financial circumstances or need, and all LL.M. applicants (both American and foreign-educated law graduates) are eligible for consideration. Due to the competitive nature of these fellowships, we cannot guarantee that all applicants will receive the Dean's Tuition Fellowship if granted admission. Strong academic performance/background, English skills, and other standout abilities in the remaining components of the application may provide for a competitive advantage and could certainly grant candidates favorable consideration by the Graduate Studies Committee. There is no separate/formal application for these fellowships. When applying, applicants should indicate whether they would like to be considered for the fellowship by simply noting this the online application in the "Finances" section.

UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO BOULDER

The University of Colorado Law School was established in 1892. The first woman graduated with the first graduating class in 1894. The first students of color entered in 1897. The law school became a charter member of the Association of American Law Schools, organized in 1901. And, the school has been on the American Bar Association's list of approved law schools since its first publication in 1923. Building on a history of progressivism, inclusivity, and service, Colorado Law's academic specialties include Indigenous Persons and Native American Law, Human Rights, Public Service Law, and extends to our specializations in Natural Resources and Environmental Law, Entrepreneurship and Business Law, Intellectual Property, and more. Colorado Law LL.M. students benefit from access to the programming, courses, and law school culture originally designed for our J.D. program. With a class size of roughly 25 LL.M.s, inclusion, access, and community are integral to the LL.M. experience. Our students have extraordinary credentials and life experiences. In addition to being intelligent, congenial, hard-working, and entrepreneurial, our students are engaged with the community. A plethora of active student organizations, rich externship opportunities, and a robust Public Service Pledge Program enable our students to foster Colorado Law's tradition of service. Located in Boulder, Colorado, Colorado Law offers a safe, secure, and tranquil geographic location nestled between Denver and the Rocky Mountains, a holistic U.S. university experience, access to a multitude of Rocky Mountain ski resorts, and access to one of the fastest growing metropolitan areas in the USA, Denver.

University of Michigan Law School

Ann Arbor, MI

www.law.umich.edu

law.grad.admissions@umich.edu

Located in the heartland of the United States, the University of Michigan Law School is consistently considered one of the top law schools in the world. It has all the advantages of a large university with easy access to an international airport, but is nestled in a beautiful and vibrant college town that is steeped in Midwestern hospitality. It is an idyllic location in which to study law and discover America. Michigan Law has a long and storied history of international leadership and engagement that reaches back at least to 1890, when its LL.M. program began. This legacy continues today with professors who are fluent in many languages, who have published in numerous international journals, and whose opinions and actions influence world events. Michigan Law counts on its faculty a German Federal Constitutional Court justice, an International Court of Justice judge, four Fellows of the British Academy, and a Max-Planck Institute director, among others. Last April, the Law School hosted 13 members of the Court of Justice of the European Union. Michigan's LL.M. program is unique because it is capped at about 40 students each year to ensure high selectivity, broad geographic diversity, and thorough integration. Students, coming from about 25 countries, may live on the famous Law Quad with J.D. students, will take courses alongside J.D. students, and may select from nearly all the courses available to J.D. students. Michigan's new Master of Advanced Corporation Law provides a deep dive into corporation law during one three-month summer term.

Application deadlines:

LL.M. degree program deadline: January 31

Funding assistance / scholarships / partial fee waivers available for international students:

All Fulbright candidates are awarded an application fee waiver for the LL.M. programs. Such candidates applying directly to Michigan Law should please email us at law.grad.admissions@umich.edu to let us know that they are Fulbright candidates so that we can then provide them with further instructions on how to apply. (If they are applying via LSAC, they will receive a fee waiver code.) All LL.M. applicants are welcome to apply for need-based application fee waivers. In addition, Michigan Law awards a limited number of merit based application fee waivers to select candidates identified via the CRS system on LSAC. All information about Michigan Law's fellowships can be found here: <https://www.law.umich.edu/prospectivestudents/graduate/Pages/financialaid.aspx>.

There is no separate deadline for fellowships: all students who requested financial aid when they originally submitted their application (deadline for the LL.M. programs is January 31), will be considered for fellowships once they have been admitted. Our admission decisions are blind with respect to the financial status of the applicant. Fellowship decisions are made only after the admission decision.

Pitt
Law

Pitt Law's LL.M. program provides lawyers who have completed their law degree outside the United States with an opportunity to study the common law legal tradition and the U.S. legal system in the United States. You can build the degree you want from a wide range of electives. Take a broad survey of U.S. law, or focus in on a particular field of law. With a relatively small class (averaging 15 to 25 LL.M. students each year), we provide each student with individual advice, guidance and support. Other than two required LL.M.-only classes, you will take all of your coursework in the same classes and seminars as our U.S. J.D. students. Our faculty are a close-knit community of intelligent and energetic scholars who are at the forefront of domestic and international legal research and scholarship. CILE works with LL.M. students who wish to stay in Pittsburgh for the summer after graduation and intern at a law firm or other organization. We work with each student to assist them in finding an internship provider that best suits his or her field of interest.

SCHOOL of LAW

Founded by Thomas Jefferson in 1819, the University of Virginia School of Law is the second-oldest continuously operating law school in the nation. Consistently ranked among the top law schools, Virginia is a world-renowned training ground for distinguished lawyers and public servants, instilling in them a commitment to leadership, integrity and community service.

Virginia is justly famous for its collegial environment that bonds students and faculty. At Virginia, law students share their experiences in a cooperative spirit, both in and out of the classroom, and build a network that lasts well beyond their three years here. Surrounded by inviting gardens and an elegant, tree-lined lawn, the Law School reflects Jefferson's conviction that locating an intellectual community within a beautiful environment fosters learning and personal growth. With more than 22,000 students and a faculty of more than 2,100, the University of Virginia has been ranked among the nation's top public universities since 1984. By maintaining a small and highly selective program of about 50 students, the Law School ensures a supportive atmosphere. LL.M. candidates take classes alongside J.D. students, allowing participants to fully engage in the community and plan their own coursework.

Vanderbilt Law School, founded in 1874, is situated on one of the most beautiful university campuses in the world. Located in Nashville, Tennessee, a sophisticated and dynamic city, Vanderbilt Law School offers a first-rate legal education in a setting that promotes a great quality of life. Among the nation's leading law schools, Vanderbilt is nationally and internationally recognized for its distinguished faculty, its talented students drawn from across the United States and around the world, and its rigorous curriculum. Vanderbilt offers three LL.M. program options: a general LL.M. degree, a specialized LL.M. in Law and Business, and a Thesis Track option. A variety of academic offerings allow LL.M. students to focus on a particular area of interest in an array of fields, including corporate and business law, constitutional law, litigation and dispute resolution, criminal law, international law, intellectual property, and environmental law.

For foreign law graduates, the LL.M. program is designed to provide both a broad introduction to American law and legal theory, and advanced training in specialized areas of the law that are relevant to the individual student's interests and career goals. Vanderbilt's small and highly selective LL.M. program size makes it possible for students to enjoy greater access to faculty and promotes a sense of community that is one of Vanderbilt's most distinguishing attributes. Vanderbilt is famous for its challenging and collegial environment.
